I have a project in which I am creating a DLL library for a 3rd party use. I have a class and I wish to pass an object from my library to the 3rd party. I could add and set the object directly in the constructor but the 3rd party doesn't have access to the constructor. How can I pass that object into the constructor? I thought about using some kind of global variable, but I wanted to know how to do it first. Any suggestions? A: If all you want to do is set a value so that the 3
